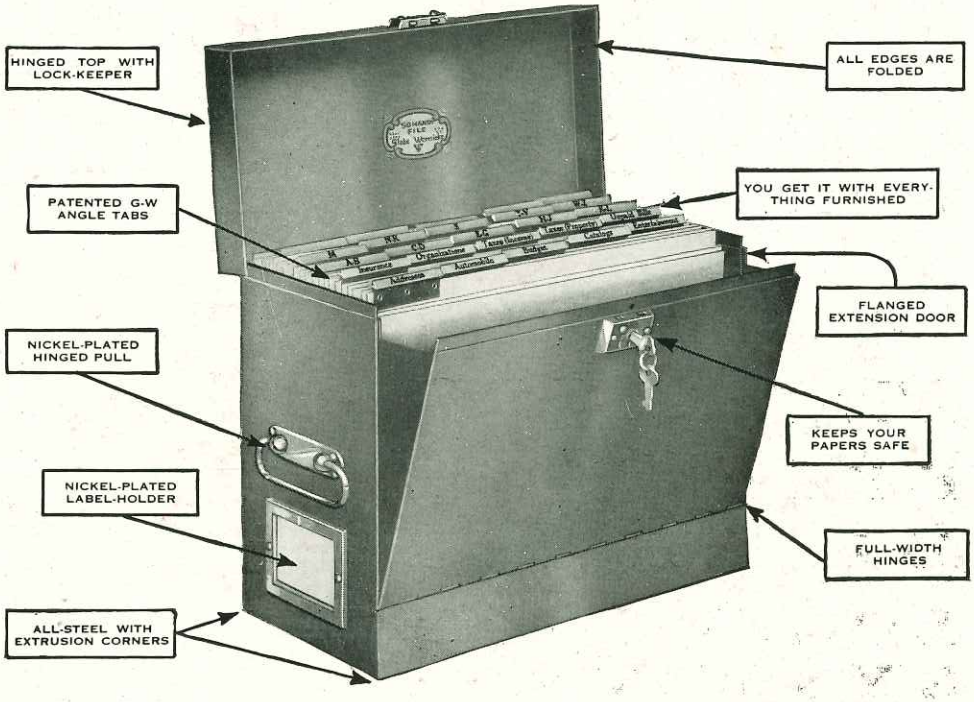
The So-Handy File for Office and Home

You Will Not Have to Search—You Simply Reach—For That Important Paper



The ideal home file for the salesman, executive, lawyer, doctor, teacher, student, alert housewife—and everybody who has a budget to keep or who must do some home work or keep valuable papers close at hand.

Regularly furnished with twenty-five patented G-W Angle Tab, heavy jute folders, the "kind you can't wear out."

Ten of these folders comprise a set of A-to-Z alphabetical tabs, for the handy filing of correspondence, special notes, etc. Ten are fitted with personal file inserts (see above). ADDRESSES, AUTOMOBILE, BUDGET, CATALOGS, ENTERTAINMENT, INSURANCE ORGANIZATIONS, TAXES (Income), TAXES (Personal), and UNPAID BILLS. "A place for everything and everything in its place."

The other five folders have blank inserts; ready for you to write on them any special reference word you choose, such as PLUMBING, BUILDING, SPORTS, STUDIES, LODGES, etc.

All the above are standard equipment. You will appreciate the convenience with which each of these tabs can be quickly removed, reversed and a new reference written on, any moment you choose to make a change.

In addition, you get the following extra supplies, with no extra charge: A set of twenty-five A-to-Z alphabetical tabs, a set of 1-to-31 MONTHLY tabs, a set of SUNDAY to SATURDAY weekly tabs, and a blank insert strip.

There is nothing about the SO-HANDY File to get out of order. The all-steel construction assures you that, unless it is purposely damaged, it will be in as good working order twenty years from now as it is today.

No. 1000 Green Finish, each $8.00 No. 1001 Mahogany Finish, each $10.00

Size, 10½ inches high, 12½ inches long, 6 inches wide

Indexes for Loose-Leaf Systems

INDEXING—the most important feature in loose-leaf systems is often given too little consideration. After the proper ruled and printed loose-leaf sheets and a suitable binder have been selected with a view to greatest utility and convenience, particular attention should be paid to obtaining a proper set of indexes so that all accounts and data may be most readily located. The most practical way to determine the number of index divisions for loose-leaf books is to divide the number of accounts by ten, thus making an average of ten accounts to each index tab.

Loose-leaf indexes are subdivided into groups of tabbed indexes, increasing by 25 up to 2500, if necessary; for instance: 25 divisions, 50 divisions, 75 divisions, etc., besides states, months and numerical. In estimating the number of tabs required divide the number of accounts by ten; if you have 250 accounts you will need a 25 division index; if you have 2000 accounts you will need a 200 division index.

Indexes may be obtained in three grades.

Pubreco Celluloid Made on heavy weight No. 1 ledger paper, buff color, solid edge celluloid over printed tab.

Grade 1 Leather Made on heavy weight No. 1 ledger paper, buff color, tabs red leather, gold embossed, muslin reinforced over tab and at binding edge.

GRADE 4—Khaki Binding with Red Cowhide Corners

Endlock style lock with clock key, and toplock style with button device. Metal hinges. Substantially made. Oval shaped steel tubes welded by acetylene process, with end caps of aluminum rounded and polished to prevent scratching the desk. An exclusive feature is the method of binding, the canvas being tucked into the ends of the metal tubes and the steel end caps clinched over the binding to hold it securely in place. This fully overcomes one of the most serious faults of the old style binders, which usually came apart as soon as the binding material loosened from the metals.

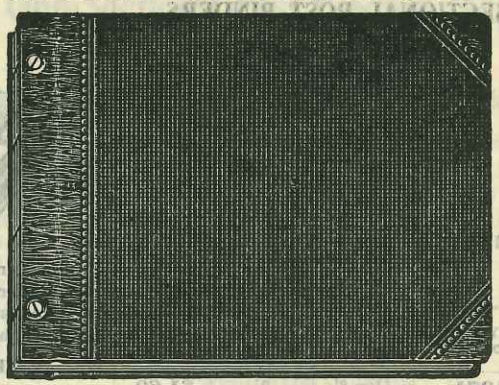
LOOSE-LEAF COLUMNAR OUTFITS



Outfits consist of 75 sheets (150 pages), and a black cloth binder with artificial leather back and corners

Used for Estimates, Analyses, Statistics, and Distribution of Accounts

SHEETS

The sheets are white and have the patented flat-opening hinge. They are banded in packages of 100. If you wish the column headings printed to avoid writing them again and again, write us for an estimate.

RULINGS

Faint rulings are standardized on all forms of the same size to insure perfect alignment when different forms are used in a long and short leaf combination. Every fifth faint line is heavier to serve as a guide.

ECONOMY

In a growing business, loose-leaf is cheaper in the long run than blank books, which have to be discarded for others when more columns are required. The addition of short leaves in a loose-leaf binder provides the necessary expansion.

CONVENIENCE

With the forms illustrated on this page, it is possible to make a great variety of combinations by using two or more together. Instead of having to carry the line of entry over all the intervening columns on one sheet, the distance between the last column and the description column is lessened by inserting short leaves. This is a saving of time and promotes accuracy.

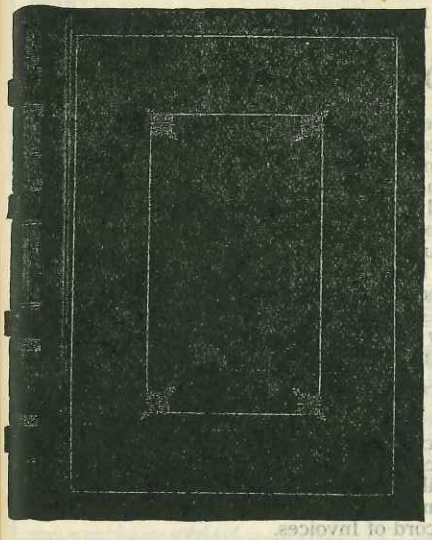
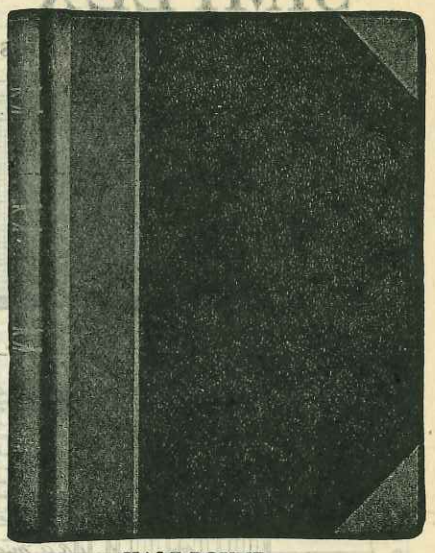
Loose Leaf Corporation Minute Books



FULL BOUND

OPERATING SHORT PULL ROD



HALF BOUND

Loose Leaf Minute Books facilitate the keeping of neat, clean, legible records for corporations, lodges, societies and clubs. The secretary dictates the notes made at the meeting and they are typewritten on a sheet which is placed in the binder, locked and signed by the secretary. All sheets are keyed to prevent tampering with records, and are duplicated by the factory only when the request is accompanied by credentials. A factory record is made of every duplication. The short pull rod makes it the work of an instant to remove or replace a sheet and is a great improvement over the long pull rod and the key device.

For a comprehensive perpetual stores record, we recommend this sheet, Form 7072-C J. The sheet is used on the unit plan, one leaf for each item. It is adaptable for a cost system, keeping stock of furnished articles or raw materials, space provided for quantity, cost, stock received, reserved, issued, and balance on hand. Can be checked against filed requisitions and invoices for material received. The balance column furnishes an indication to the purchasing agent when stock falls below minimum quantity so that an order can be placed in ample time. Suitable indexes for filing alphabetically under the names of the items will be found on page 10. Ruled and printed both sides of Buff ledger paper, size 11¼x13⅞, punched to fit binders on page 12.

Forms SR-1 and SR-2

The importance of keeping an accurate record of merchandise needs no emphasis. It is essential that the order, sales and replacement of merchandise guide the buyer in determining the quantity required in order to prevent over-buying on slow-moving goods and to insure an ample stock of merchandise with a quick turn-over. The reverse side of both forms here illustrated are ruled as a continuation of the right side of the page shown. Buff ledger paper, size 9¼x11⅞ inches, punched four 5-16-inch slotted holes, 7⅛ inches outside centers, to fit standard binders.

MERCHANDISE STOCK RECORDS WITHOUT PRINTED HEADING

For unusual stock record requirements, we recommend a form which has no printed heading and can be easily adapted to conform to any number of columns desired. It has an intermediate faint line which doubles the capacity. This form can be used as a cut leaf record by cutting the double page form with side description on the line following the description.

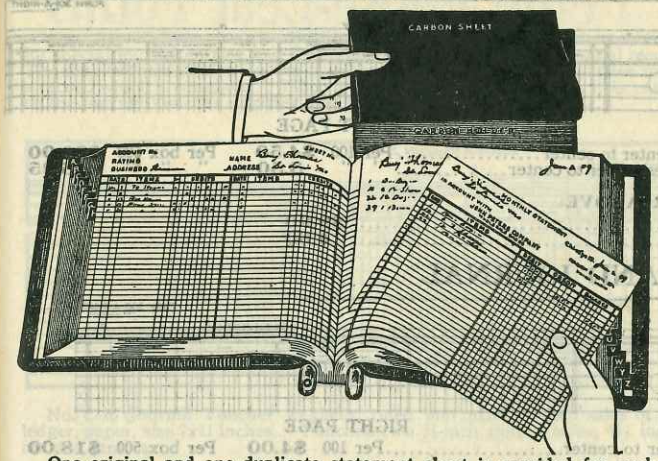
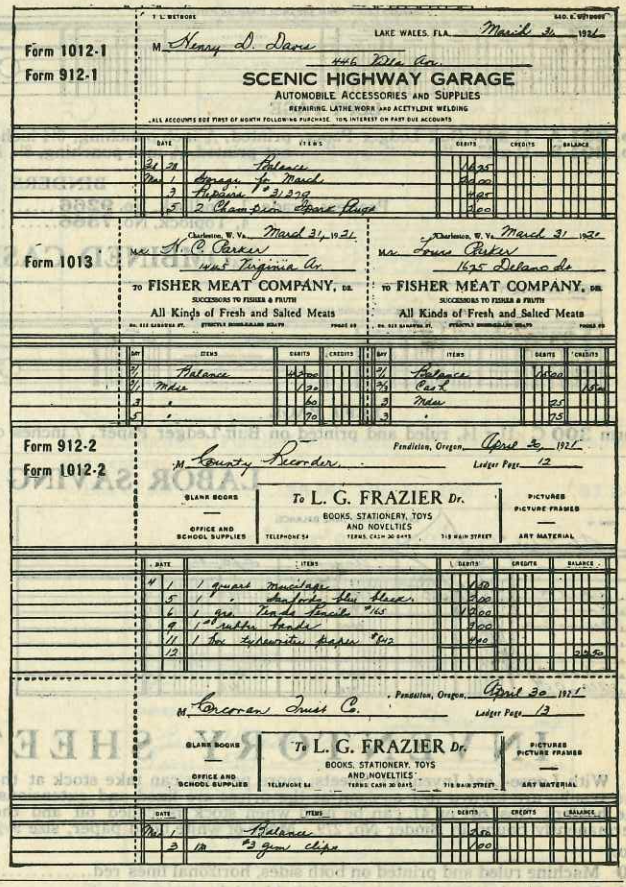
DUPLICATE STATEMENT SYSTEMS





One original and one duplicate statement sheet is provided for each account and all are grouped in a single binder which is self-indexing because accounts arrange themselves in alphabetical order behind the index tabs. Each entry of charge or credit is duplicated by the use of carbon so that the duplicate sheet becomes an itemized ledger account of the customer.

Where Tumble Head Ledger Sheet is used, it is placed in the binder so as to lay at the left of the statement sheet. This method is preferred by some book-keepers but is not always considered necessary since the old balance may be carried forward to the top of the new statement sheet each month and all credits posted to the statement. Ledger sheets are used by some concerns for summarizing separate charges and credits and are kept in separate binders; this provides a complete record of the business in convenient and condensed form.

The Duplicate Sales Book may be used in connection with the Statement System, each sale being listed in the book, original sale slip given to the customer and the duplicate slip sent to the bookkeeper for posting on the statement sheet. Entry of these charges is easily made by arranging the slips for each day alphabetically.

Whenever statement is desired the total charges for the month, plus the original balance, less credits, make the exact balance easily determined. When statement has been taken at the end of each month or other period, the duplicate statements are removed from the binder and filed in a transfer binder, the sheets for each customer being kept together and arranged in order by months. The original statements are torn off at the perforation and sent to customers as statements of account.

CHARTS AND GRAPHS

Such information is collected by the day, week, month or year, and can be visualized at a glance when presented on a Graphic Business Chart or a Percentage Analysis Chart like those illustrated here.

SALESMAN'S EXPENSE BOOK

Sheets are made to fit a pocket size memorandum cover; one side of the sheet carries the detail of the expense record and the reverse side carries a summary of the account and the route list for the following week. The advantage of this system over a bound expense book lies in the fact that the complete report for one week is kept on a single page, making it more convenient for the traveler and for the main office where it is filed.

Lithographed both sides on white bond paper, size 6x3½ inches.

A convenient form for keeping a record of customers and prospects, designed to facilitate a systematic method of follow up. The cards are punched to fit the pocket size Memo Cover, end opening style, which enables a salesman to keep them clean and to arrange them quickly in the order of his calls. When the cards are filled out they are removed from the salesman's book and forwarded to the home office where they are filed either alphabetically or if preferred by date as a tickler for salesman's next call. Ruled and printed one side only on white card stock, size 3x5 inches, punched to fit memorandum covers on page 5.

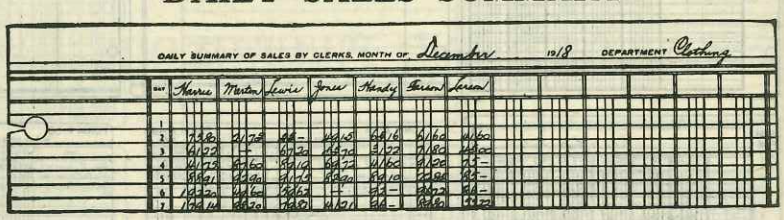
DAILY SALES SUMMARY



To determine whether a clerk is profitable to the business, it is necessary to have a record of his sales. Form C-177 will provide space for the records of 26 clerks for one month, or of one clerk for two years. Sales slips are sorted, and the totals entered each day, in the space for each clerk. Total sales by clerks may be checked each day against department totals and with the total sales for the day, thus affording a triple check.

Printed on buff ledger paper, size 11x14 inches, punched two ⅜-inch holes, 7-inch centers, and will fit the binders on pages 12 and 13.

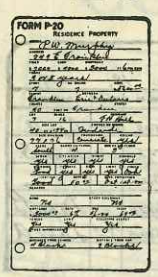
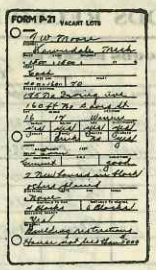
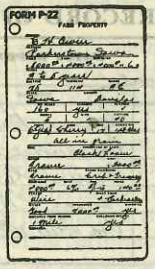
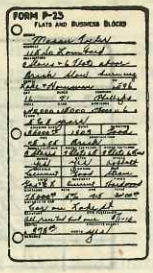
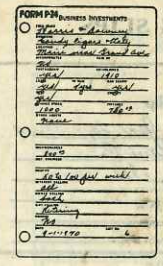
LOOSE-LEAF FORMS FOR REALTORS

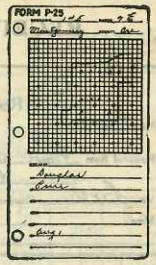












A great convenience in listing city and country properties, for sale or for rent. Each form provides blanks for filling in the description of the property. In offices where more than one salesman is employed, duplicate copies can be made at one typing or writing, and each salesman provided with a book which will enable him to answer intelligently any questions he may be asked. In small offices all listings can be grouped in one cover with the various classes of property separated by index leaves for easy reference.

Sheets are bond paper punched to fit price book covers in size 6¾x3¾, side opening.

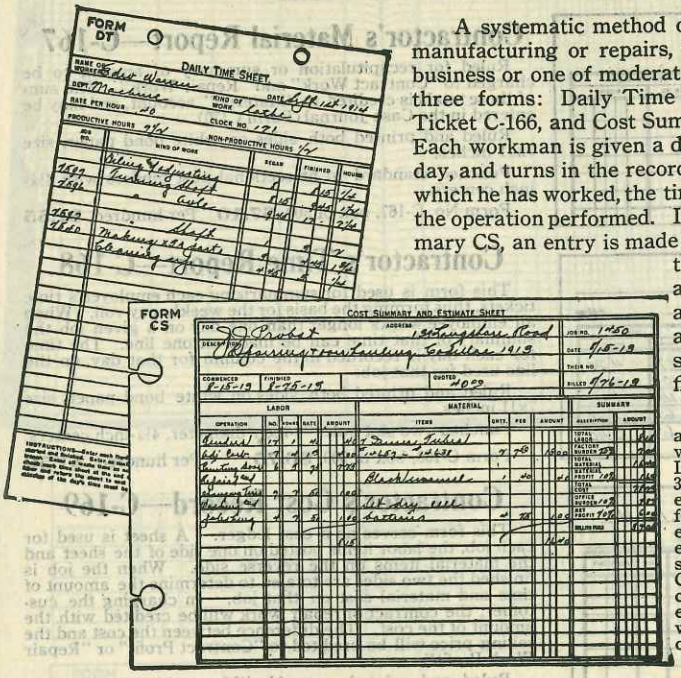
COST AND ESTIMATE SYSTEM



A systematic method of arriving at cost of manufacturing or repairs, designed for a small business or one of moderate size. It consists of three forms: Daily Time Sheets DT, Material Ticket C-166, and Cost Summary or Estimate CS. Each workman is given a daily time sheet every day, and turns in the record of the job or jobs on which he has worked, the time spent on each, and the operation performed. In making out the summary CS, an entry is made of labor and material totals for each job, and a fixed percentage is added for overhead and profit. The same sheet may be used in figuring an estimate.

NOTE—Form DT, may also be used in connection with the Contractor's Loose-leaf System on page 30. The time recorded for each job may be gathered from the tickets of all the employees who have worked on that job and the summary recorded on form C-169 to show the labor cost of a given job. Each employee's tickets for the week may be summarized on form C-168.

MATERIAL RECORD

Form CS. Per M.....$10.00 Per pad.....$1.25

These tickets are used by the foreman or superintendent in making requisitions for materials or supplies to come from stock or from outside sources. The tickets are numbered consecutively from 1 up, and are used with forms CS or C-167 on page 30, all totals being carried from the material tickets to the summary sheets. The use of this system saves errors and delays, and promotes care and economy in ordering supplies. It also insures against failure to charge materials to the jobs on which they are used. Ruled and printed one side only, size 6x9½ inches. Punched two round holes, 3/16-inch diameter, 2¾ inch centers.

The time for each day is recorded in the column for that day, on the line used for that job.

When the job is finished the two sides are totaled to determine the amount of time and material cost on that job. In charging the customer, the contract or repair work will be credited with the amount of the cost. The difference between the cost and the selling price will be credited to "Contract Profit" or "Repair Work Profit".

CONTRACTOR'S CASH JOURNAL

March 1919

CONTRACTOR'S CASH JOURNAL

March 1919

For building, electrical, plumbing, heating, painting, road building, or any other work done on a contract basis or for repair work at an open price. Profit columns for "Contract work" and "Repair Work" enables one to determine how much is invested in unfinished work, as well as to figure the gross profit on finished jobs. There should be a general ledger account for Contract Work, Contract Profit, Repair Work, and Repair Work Profit. Each "Work" account is charged with the amount expended on labor and material for that class of work. It is credited with the amount of labor and material applied to a given job when that job is finished. The difference therefore, shows the amount invested in unfinished jobs. The "Profit" accounts are credited with the difference between the labor and material costs of the finished jobs, and the selling price. From this gross profit the overhead must be deducted to ascertain net profit. Other forms on this page are optional, depending upon the special requirements of the business. Ruled and printed both sides different on buff linen ledger paper, 11x17 inches. Punched two slot holes ⅜-inch diameter; 7-inch centers. Packed 25 sheets in a package.

A separate sheet is used for each item, and the quantities received and withdrawn are posted, thus showing at all times the balance which should be in stock. The sheets are usually arranged alphabetically according to the names of the items. If this is done, a regular A to Z index may be used, or the names of the articles can be written on "Makurown" Index Strips (see page 11). Filled sheets and closed accounts may be transferred to any loose leaf ledger.

BANK REGISTER SYSTEM

For Banks and Trust Companies.

The system consists of six forms of uniform size with suitable index and binders to accommodate the needs of banks of various size. For a small bank we recommend Outfit No. B-129, with all forms in one binder. The combination of Outfits No. B-127 and B-129 provides greater capacity in two volumes. From the larger institutions there is a demand for a separate binder for each form, as we have them listed in the Uniform Bank Outfits.

All forms are ruled and printed two sides on buff ledger paper, size 16x13. They are punched two ⅜-inch holes, 9 inches center to center.

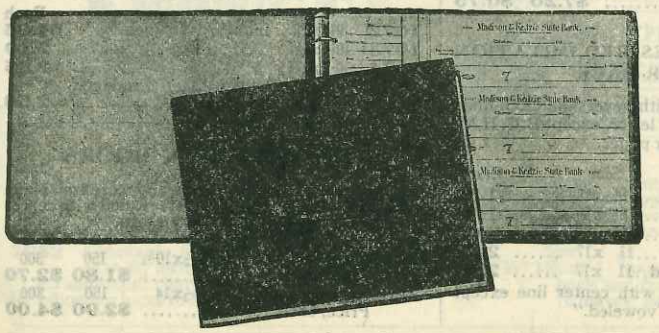
CUSTOMERS' CHECK COVERS

As soon as a page of checks is written, the filled stub leaf is turned on the rings to the left side of the book where it is out of the way. This feature overcomes one of the greatest faults in the bound check book and in the ordinary type of loose leaf book in which the leaves are held by posts, because in these books the filled check stubs must be held back while a new check is being written.



The Ring Check Book Cover opens perfectly flat, making a smooth, even writing surface. Where checks are to be written on a machine, the entire leaf including the stub may be removed instantly.

The Ring Check Book Covers are so moderately priced that any live banker can afford to supply them to his good customers—a form of advertising that will surely prove profitable.

BINDING—Substantially bound in full black book cloth.

CAPACITY—100 sheets.

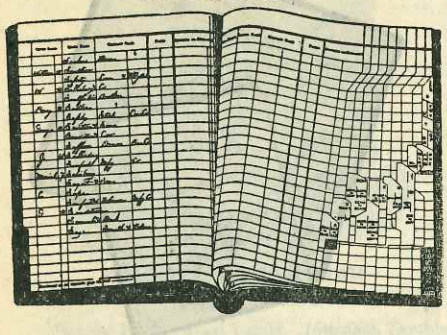
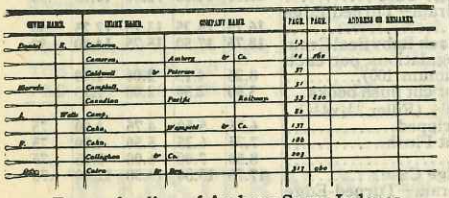
INDEXES

AMBERG-SAYER



Combines an index and address book and condenses a great number of names into the smallest space; facilitates the location of names through eliminating the possibility of error, insuring perfect classification and simple reference to the least filled column instead of the main index column as in other books.

The ruling is so arranged that every part of the name of an individual, firm or corporation has a separate column which simplifies the entering of names, causing them to appear in their natural form without transposition.



Form of ruling of Amberg-Sayer Indexes.

AMBERG'S TRIAL BALANCE BOOKS

Arrangement of alternate wide and narrow leaves.

Give thirteen balances—twelve monthly and another for complete entries at the end of a business year—with a single writing of the name, or title of account.

Short Leaves are provided so that after six months balances have been entered the money columns are brought in proper relation close to the names or titles of accounts, avoiding the necessity of looking across wide pages during the latter part of the year.

The months are not printed in the thirteen heading spaces so that the accounting can begin at any time.

They have ruled footing lines, and every alternate fifth faint or horizontal line is red and blue; this facilitates keeping on the right line.

The money columns (Debit and Credit) are ruled with unit lines insuring neatness and of great assistance in footing long columns.

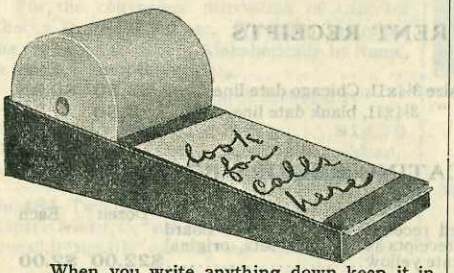
MEMO DESK ROLL



When you write anything down keep it in drawer under the cover. The price of this Register is paid for many times over by putting things down instead of trusting to your memory.

Is made to Stand Rough Usage and Long Wear. It is constructed of Art Steel, all electrically welded together. It is finished in olive-green oven-baked enamel, with the rubber bumpers on the bottom to prevent scratching or slipping when pulling out the slips to tear off. The roll of paper is fastened in, threaded on a wire spindle which can be removed by springing the sides of the box slightly.

VERTICAL FILE GUIDES—TABBED AND EYELETED

We recommend tabbed and eyeleted guides, as the rods hold indexes to the floor of the drawers and prevent the tabs from breaking. The guides here listed are made of specially tough stock to insure long life and satisfactory service. Pressboard guides are a good investment for a file that is in constant use; manila guides are satisfactory for a transfer file or a smaller office where finding papers does not keep one person employed all day long. Document file guides are not eyeleted.

Card Index is the logical and handy way to handle expiration work in an insurance office and we offer here three forms popular for this purpose. All are size 3x5 inches, white.

Admits more than one policy to the card. Filed by year of expiration, and for the current year by month and day.

Tabbed Expiration Card 3-U-3

Many agents prefer a card for each policy, filing long term business by the year and short term by month and day. This form is ideal for the purpose, since names may be alphabetically arranged for the month of expiration.

Per 100..... .60

ASSURED'S LINE CARD 3-U-4

An improvement over the old style line and index book. Shows entire amount of insurance and expiration dates of all policies. One card for each client acts as a cross index to the expiration cards.

SMITH'S OPNWINDO STEEL GUIDES

Made of tempered spring steel. They are easily attached or rearranged, yet hold securely.

The gracefully rounded edges and corners and velvet black finish contrasting with white, celluloid-covered labels, make them the handsomest guides on the market and most agreeable to the touch of the operator.

The label openings or windows are the same on both sides of the guides. In the 2-in. O-W size, the windows are 5-16 in. x 1 11-16 in., or large enough for two lines of typewriting of 17 letters each. In the 1 in. O-W size the windows are 5-16 in. x 3-4 in., or large enough for two typewritten lines of 8 letters each..

The labels are completely enclosed in the steel frames, so it is impossible for them to be accidentally damaged or moved, but they may be quickly inserted or removed WITHOUT TAKING THE GUIDES FROM THE GUIDE CARDS. Prices include a celluloid window and blank label for each guide.

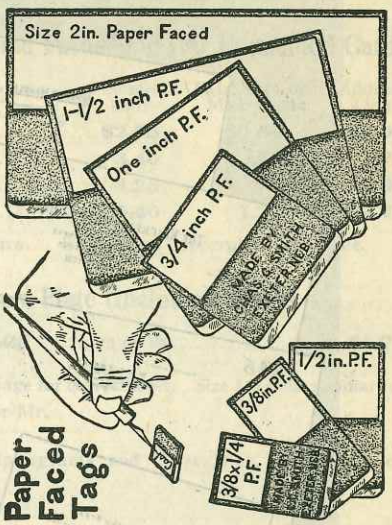
SMITH'S ADJUSTABLE INDEX TAGS



DESCRIPTION

Steel clips, enclosed in the leather tabs, on which any desired inscription may be written or printed. They can instantly be slipped on a leaf or card, and hold with a vise-like grip. They can be quickly removed to another page or to a different book if you wish.

Paper-Faced Tags have a facing on each side, over the leather, of best buff Scotch linen ledger paper, which gives the most desirable surface for writing inscriptions with ink or pencil. They are made in the five sizes shown below. Will stand from 1 to 3 erasures of ink and from 20 to 50 of pencil. Gummed stickers with which to renew the facings are furnished for 10 cents per hundred.

Celluloid Tags have transparent celluloid attached to the face of the tag with an opening for inserting either a printed, lettered or typewritten label. This affords two advantages: reading matter cannot be effaced and label can be changed readily without the use of gummed labels.

RUBBER TYPEWRITER KEY CUSHIONS

Be sure to mention make and number of your machine when you order.

They save the operator's eyes by eliminating the injurious glare of the shiny rim and gloss of the key tops. They prevent fatigue by removing the direct impact of the finger tips with the hard keys. They prevent slit nails and bruised fingers. They insure greater accuracy by keeping the fingers from slipping; and much greater speed on account of the increased resiliency of the keyboard. They lengthen the life of the machine, and prevent the type from indenting the roller.

The characters are heavily inlaid, and the key is made of the best rubber obtainable. Set, $3.50

BATES PHONE DIRECTORY

An ingenious device for finding a name without search or trouble. A paper strip can be written or typewritten to hold 720 names and numbers. Turning the knob on the side of the directory causes the names to pass at high speed. A red indicator marks the first name under the initial letter sought, and signals the user to decrease the speed of the cylinder so the names can be read. New list of names or complete revision requires a new paper strip. The case is of heavy steel finished in bronze, and has rubber feet. Occupies a space 3½x4½ inches on the desk or switchboard.

The verification of the printing number is of great importance in many offices, particularly where numerical systems are used for ledger accounts, filing systems, etc. With the indicator, the operator is assured at a glance as to the correctness of the machine, and that no change of numbers has been made during his absence.

Construction—Model 41 is fitted with three movements and may be set so that it will number either consecutively or in duplicate, or repeat. Changes from one movement to any other movement are quickly made by throwing the lever at the side of the front plate to the desired requirement. When set at consecutive, the machine will advance one unit at each impression. The duplicate movement furnishes two impressions of each number while the repeat movement will continue the same number until changed.

Prices will be based on longest line in stamp. Order will be filled with Cushion Stamps with turned handles unless otherwise instructed. On plain hand stamps without cushions an allowance of 5 cents will be made.

Straight borders are measured as two lines and round, diamond, irregular, triangle or oval borders as three lines—according to size.

Curved lines count as two lines, except where they occur inside a round or oval border, in which case they count as one line.

Grooves for changeable dates, figures, etc., 50 cents additional.

Special sizes and designs, stamps larger than those for which prices are given, and stamps containing special or peculiar designs, made at reasonable prices.

When ordering hand stamps state the length or the purpose for which they are intended; or send a blank on which it is to be used indicating the number of lines, and we will select and arrange the size and style of type most suitable. Care should be taken that the copy is distinctly written, especially with regard to initials and names. If we are left in any doubt, it is necessary to write for instructions or submit a proof, which necessitates several days delay in filling order.

STEELCASE FILING CABINETS

STEELCASE Filing Cabinets are the best filing cabinets that the present art of manufacture makes possible. They are built to endure—to typify the permanence of business. Into them there has been built every feature that experience has shown adds to the usefulness and efficiency of such equipment. Handsome as they are, their real worth lies in their remarkable hidden values. These values are realized best after years of long hard service that would end the usefulness of ordinary files.

The STEELCASE line of filing equipment is complete. It embraces a wide variety of standardized units, all of which are carried in stock for prompt shipment. The requirements of practically every business can be met by one or more of these stock units. In combination or alone they provide for the proper filing and protection of business correspondence, data and records.

Handsome In Appearance

Clean-cut lines and correct designs make these cabinets match the finest office furniture. The finishes, consisting of successive coats of enamel separately baked into the steel, are carefully rubbed by hand to a satin surface. The standard finishes are Imitation Mahogany, American Walnut, Oak and Olive Green. Quotations on the matching of any special finish will be furnished on request.

Extreme rigidity; a reinforced cabinet. A special frame work or skeleton of channel steel welded together carries the weight of the drawers and insures permanent rigidity. This framework is welded into a complete unit, and is then intermembered with the outer shell or cabinet. The assembled cabinet and framework is then spot welded together; the front corners gas welded and filed.

Ball bearing suspension, frictionless. Easy running drawers that will not rebound. Drawers stay closed eliminating necessity for any catch.

Standard drawer, with grooved bottom permits the use of standard guides and folders, or the continued use of present supplies and filed correspondence in this new cabinet.

Flush finished end cases. Suitable for use individually or in batteries. May be bolted together by knocking out half perforated bolt holes in sides of cabinet.

All hardware of solid cast bronze satin finish, held to devices by invisible screws or bolts.

General Locks

All upright cabinets may be furnished with a general locking device controlling all drawers. The operation of this mechanism is governed by a paracentric key lock, plunger type, fitted in the top of the cabinet. Pushing in the barrel of the lock itself, locks all drawers. A key is required only to unlock the drawers. Drawers left open and closed later when the cabinet is locked, automatically lock. The position of the lock itself, seen at a glance, shows instantly whether the cabinet is unlocked or locked. Masterkeyed locks can be furnished on request.

Drawers That Stay Closed—No Rebound

STEELCASE drawers will not rebound. The suspensions are so made that a drawer even when slammed into a case will stay there. The drawers in a STEELCASE cabinet are always tightly closed, protecting their contents from dirt and water, and giving a neat and orderly appearance to a battery of filing cabinets.

Drawer and Compressor

The body of all file drawers is formed from a single sheet of steel. Drawer sides are flush with round edges, and are reinforced by having channels formed in them. These flush sides and rounded edges permit speedier filing and prevent the edges of correspondence folders from being torn in the process.

The compressor slides in a formed shape of steel welded in the bottom of the drawer body and is independent of the rod. It also is made to engage with and be supported by the sides of the drawer. The compressor is released by a slight pressure and locks instantly in any position the moment this pressure is withdrawn. It is absolutely positive in its action.

Filing Capacity

The filing depth of each drawer or compartment of a STEELCASE upright filing cabinet is more than 25 inches measured in front of the compressor, giving practically 102 inches net filing capacity in a four-drawer file. This maximum filing capacity exceeds by 5 per cent to 25 per cent that of the majority of similar cabinets of other manufacture. Figured on their actual filing capacity, STEELCASE files cost less per lineal inch of filing space than practically any other make of filing equipment.

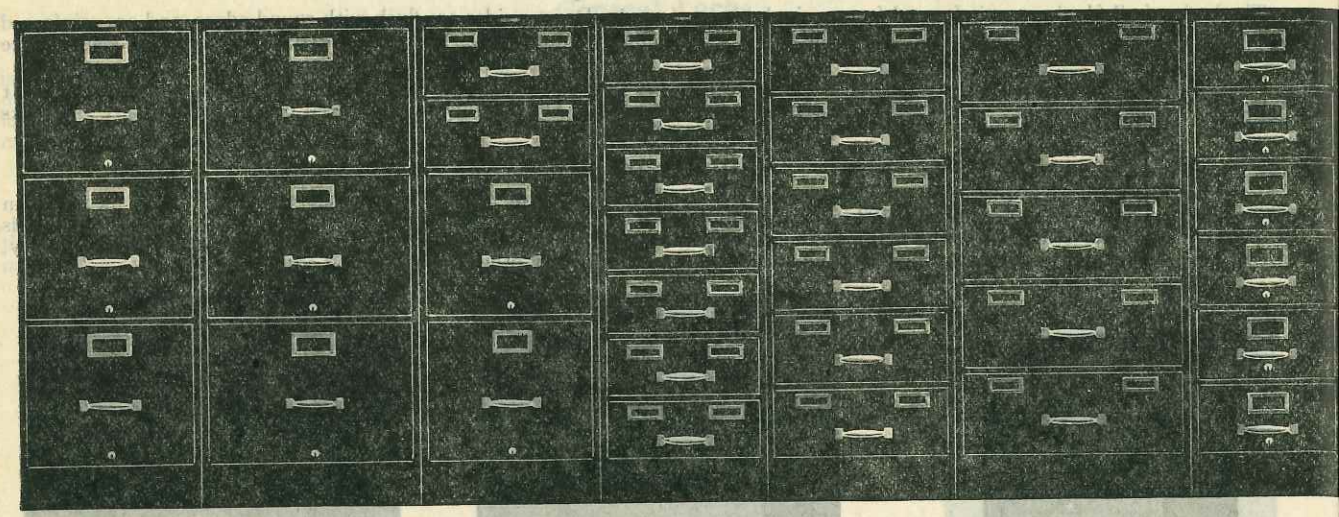
STEELCASE COUNTER HEIGHT UNITS



No. 1255 No. 1257 No. 1262 No. 1271 No. 1272 No. 1273 No. 1274

STEELCASE counter height filing cabinets combine all the advantages of practical filing equipment with that of being used as a counter if desired. The persistent and increasing demand for this type of equipment is due to certain definite advantages it offers. Counter height cabinets permit a "clear vision" office; giving executives an unobstructed view of the entire office from their desk chair. Because of their low height they do not cast shadows, permitting a more even diffusion of light throughout the office.

Counters built from filing units save both space and time. They utilize efficiently every inch of space under the counter top, keeping records and information most accessible. Business transactions over a counter are brief and easily terminated. Service is improved, and much of the time wasted on "visitors" is eliminated. STEELCASE counters form a courteous barrier for separating public space or reception room from the office proper, or for departmentalizing the office itself.

Each cabinet is complete with a finished steel top as shown. When cabinets are arranged into a counter whose top will be used as a working surface, we supply a unit top of battleship linoleum, covering one or a group of cabinets.

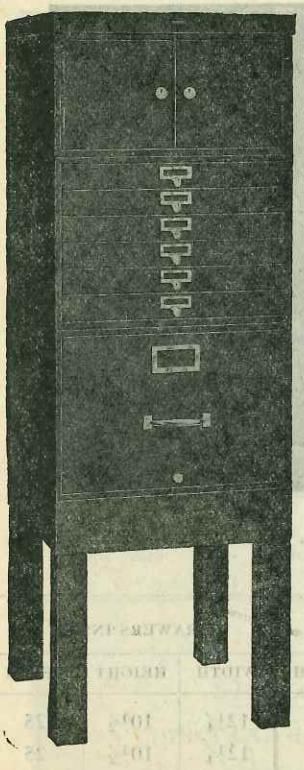
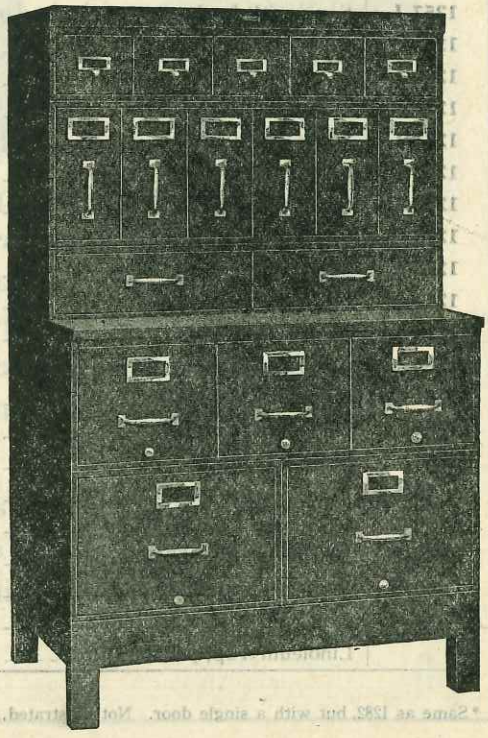
STEELCASE SECTIONAL FILING EQUIPMENT



The half sections and wide sections of the STEELCASE line offer the most elastic and flexible arrangement of filing equipment possible.

Among the stock sections will be found units designed for the filing of practically every office record. With several of these units as a nucleus the unforeseen requirements of a growing business can be immediately accommodated by an added section or two. As additional filing capacity is needed, extra sections can always be added, one complete stack containing several styles of filing equipment.

Note particularly from these illustrations how perfectly these sections stack up, giving the appearance of a finished cabinet. The sides are flush, and the interlocking devices on each section bind them tightly together. The clean-cut lines, beautiful cast bronze hardware, and hand rubbed finishes make these sections particularly adapted for use in private and executive offices.



Both half sections and wide sections are used in equipping STEELCASE safes. For this reason they have been designed to give the greatest possible amount of net filing capacity in proportion to the space they occupy. These sections can also be made into omnibuses or vault trucks.

Space does not permit the illustrating of the complete line of half sections and wide sections, we show two combinations, which can be made of standard sections, if you are interested in equipment of this kind please write us, and we will be glad to send complete data showing all available equipment.

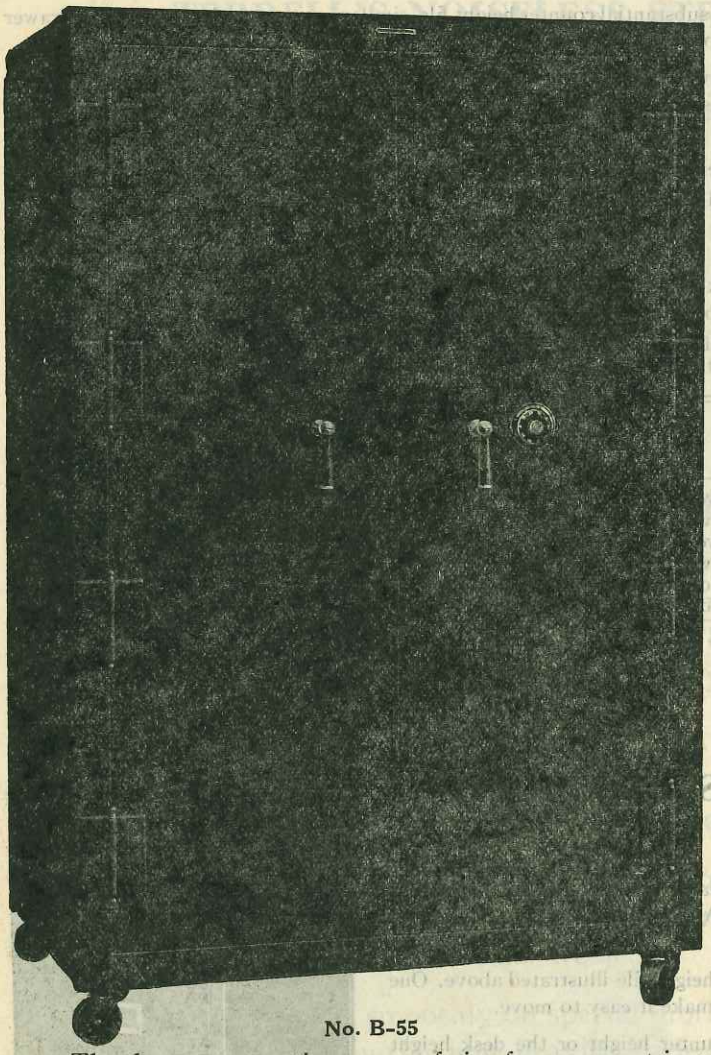
STEELCASE SAFES
Underwriters B Label Model



No. B-55

These STEELCASE safes bear the Class B label of the Underwriters' Laboratories. To secure this endorsement of their fire resisting qualities STEELCASE safes had to pass through severe tests, reproducing insofar as possible actual fire conditions.

Construction

In their design and construction STEELCASE safes have been given the utmost structural strength and rigidity. They are strongly reinforced to stand the impact of a heavy fall, and the weight of falling debris. The heavy front angle frame is intermembered with the outer wall and the inner shell.

The walls of the safe are 4½ inches thick and are filled solidly with insulation. Block insulation of the same thickness is used in the doors, and in no place is its thickness cut into to accommodate the bolt mechanism. On the contrary the entire locking mechanism is set behind the insulation against the inner walls of the doors, the doors being made an inch thicker than the walls in order to give them the same fire-resisting qualities as the other walls of the safe.

The doors fit into the inner walls of the safe with a double tongue and groove joint, effectively sealing the interior. The doors are hung on heavy plate hinges electrically welded both to the frame of the safe and to the door. The heavy bolts (four on each door) of the locking mechanism engage the inner wall of the safe, and are controlled in their operation by a strong 100-point combination lock.

The door construction on a safe is of paramount importance. The best insulation in the world will not keep heat out of a safe if the door joints are faulty. In the STEELCASE B Label safe, double tongue and groove joints are used where the door intermembers with the walls of the safe, insuring a perfect and tight fitting door joint under all conditions.

STEELCASE LIGHT WEIGHT SAFES Commercial Grade

Honestly built, without excessive weight, STEELCASE Safes give adequate record protection at an exceptionally moderate price. They are built to meet the requirements of the great majority of safe users for a strong, substantial safe, capable of fully protecting its contents under the generally existing fire and theft hazards in an office, yet one whose low cost does not make such protection prohibitive.

The correct, clean-cut lines of STEELCASE Safes convey an impression of permanence. They typify the solidity of the institutions they serve. The finishes consist of successive coats of enamel separately baked into the steel. The handles operating the bolt mechanism are of generous design, and like the sturdy combination lock are finished in bright nickel.

The construction is heavily reinforced to give it the necessary strength to withstand unharmed the impact of a heavy fall.

Heavy up-and-down bolts lock each door securely. The operation of these bolts is governed by a 100-point three-dial combination lock. The doors of STEELCASE Safes are hung on heavy plate hinges electrically welded to both doors and safe.

Weis Sectional Bookcases

The space-saving advantages of Weis Sectional Bookcases together with their rich beauty of line and finish and many novel constructional features, adapt them to every library purpose.

The sectional idea permits the adding of new units when additional books must be accommodated. The fact that the book sections come in five heights, various widths and three depths enables one to obtain a combination to fit almost any given space.

2152-W	Walnut Finish	26.50

Each section is shipped in a carton, completely assembled and ready to take its place in the stack. No screws, bolts or tools required. Each unit fits snugly and tightly in place. If a different location is desired for the stack, each section can be easily lifted and replaced without disturbing its contents.

Each door recedes into a separate compartment located above the book space, the top panel, or dust-shield, forming the bottom of this compartment. This not only obviates any chance of the door scraping the books, but serves to keep out dust and render the book space air tight. The air-cushion thus formed, together with the close fit of the doors, prevents slamming and removes the danger of breaking the glass. No felt strips used on Weis cases.

And Weis doors do not stick or bind. The movement of each door is controlled by a Weis Patented Equalizer. The door must travel straight forward and back in the recess. The Equalizers are riveted to the dust-shields so that they cannot get out of order.

Another feature is that doors are quickly and easily removed, without tools, and can be quickly replaced without taking down the stack. This—real convenience.

All regular sections are thirty-four inches wide outside. Any special width, from twenty inch to the regular width, with plain glass doors only, furnished special at one dollar per section extra.

STEELCASE DESKS

The STEELCASE desk represents the greatest advance in the development and perfection of steel desks. The advantages of steel for office furniture have long been recognized. Many prominent corporations have for years paid high premiums to secure the durability, protection from fire, and unfailing efficiency afforded by steel desks.

It remained for the STEELCASE desk to make these features available to every desk user. In the manufacture of the STEELCASE desk we have incorporated all these advantages in a truly fine desk, pleasing in design and attractive in appearance, but selling at a price no higher than that of a serviceable wood desk.

To the STEELCASE desk is due in a large measure the rapidly increasing popularity of steel desks. It has demonstrated that beauty and comfort are as available in a steel desk as durability and fire resistance.

STEELCASE desks are far more economical than any wood desk. As they never wear out, and do not depreciate, upkeep is eliminated. The tops of fine texture battleship linoleum form the ideal writing surface and cannot warp, crack, split or check. These tops are impervious to ink or wear and may be readily cleaned and washed off.

To the user a STEELCASE desk is a continual source of satisfaction. The drawers never stick or bind, regardless of the weather. Drawer bottoms cannot split, break or separate, because steel never wears out. The green linoleum top is restful to the eyes, and by eliminating the glare and reflection of artificial light prevents eye strain and fatigue.

Tremendous strength—strength not found in any other desk—is provided by the splendid channel structure reinforcing each pedestal.

STEELCASE desks are the quietest desks made. Drawers glide in and out without effort. Noise is eliminated by the construction of drawers and by the use of asbestos on pedestal panels.

STEELCASE desks are always beautiful in design and finish, and wherever used create an impression of progressiveness and responsibility.
